The Day of Disparity

Numbers & Planets

Ruled by the number 2, and by the moon, July 20th individuals are gentle and imaginative, but are easily hurt by the criticism or inattentiveness of others. Emotional, impressionable and very attuned to their own intuition, these individuals often perceive things that are to them obvious, that others miss.

Because July 20th people are also Cancerians, ruled by the moon, all of the above tendencies become even more heightened.

Lives in the balance seem to describe persons born on July 20, often rising to great heights and sinking to great depths. The seemingly permanent state of impermanence can be central to every aspect of their lives. This rhythm of rising and falling seem to be as integral to their personalities as the changing of the seasons.

Because they are so often passing from one stage to the next, one must observe them in transition to get a true sense of who they are. It is not so much a question of up or down, or even the places in between, it is the movement itself that defines them. While there is always a risk of volatility with constant change, more evolved individuals can find in this energy stability and repose. They can be living proof of the quiet eye in the middle of the hurricane.

There is a danger of falling into extremes, and these individuals are constantly challenged to maintain a balance between excessive behaviour and complacency. If they can manage to keep their focus, these individuals are capable of great accomplishments.

Another challenge for July 20th people and those they may be involved with, is the seemingly constant need for struggle. It is especially difficult for loved ones who may not share in the growth process that seems to embrace angst at the expense of happiness. For those looking to find tranquility and tradition in a mate, this may not be the best choice for you.

The Day of Disparity

With intense personal motivation, these individuals can never be satisfied with a mediocre existence. When they find the challenge, excitement and gratification they need in their lives, both personal and professional they are able to strike a balance between seeking and having.

A tedious but important aspect for July 20th persons is having to protect themselves from excessive wear and tear on their bodies. They seem to have a need to overextend themselves, often exposing themselves to dangers that can result in serious accidents or chronic physical ailments.

TAROT CARD for July 20th: The High Priestess

The High Priestess, 2nd card of the Major Arcana is a force of implacable calm. A spiritual card of hidden forces and secrets, behind this archetype lies deep intuition and all knowing wisdom. She reminds us that secret of understanding lies not "out there" but resides within.

This archetype tranquilly presides over the continual transitions brought at this level, with the reminder that even in the midst of disorder or confusion, by understanding that change is constant, it is possible to maintain a calm center.

With their "built-in" intuition, these individuals are often able to channel and develop psychic powers that may include vivid dreams, occult studies, profound meditation/visualizations or simply flashes of insight. She also carries the message to look at unseen or neglected talents or potential that can be brought to light or more fully developed.

It has been said that peace is not the absence of conflict, but rather, the ability to remain at peace in the face of conflict. As all of the Tarot 2's represent temporary energy, the High Priestess provides the silent authority that allows one to stay calm in times of transition. She is there as a reminder that when the ship is pulling into the harbor, there is really no need to go running around the deck, because the deck is already in motion.

Advice: It is important for the July 20th individual to cultivate a sense of calm, because the energy signature of this day carries with it a consistent energy of inconsistency. Awareness and acceptance of this prevailing force will allow you to stay focused on long term goals, while being able to stay calm in the moment, able to listen to your very clear inner voice.

"We each need to let our intuition guide us, and then be willing to follow that guidance directly and fearlessly."
